

ARKANSAS COTTON CONFERENCE WILL BE LARGE AFFAIR

Speakers of National Reputation to Participate in Meeting Next Thursday in Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 25.—Speakers of national reputation and representatives of some of the biggest cotton interests in the South are on the program for the state-wide cotton conference to be held here next Thursday and Friday, under the auspices of the Arkansas division of the American Cotton association.

The meeting, according to D. C. Welty, vice-president and manager of the Arkansas division of the cotton association, has for its purpose the discussion of plans for marketing the Arkansas cotton crop to the best advantage. No predictions as to what definite action the conference would take were forthcoming today, but Mr. Welty said that farmers able to do so would, without doubt, be asked to hold their cotton indefinitely. For those unable to hold their cotton because of financial stringency, plans will be made to assist in getting the best price possible for cotton, and if possible to prevent selling at an actual loss.

Speakers on the two days program will include Gov.-Elect T. C. McRae, of Arkansas; Claude Fitzpatrick, president of the Arkansas Bankers' association; former Gov. T. J. Manning, of South Carolina; J. Skottowe Wannamaker, of St. Matthews, S. C.; and B. F. McLeod, of Charleston, S. C., president and chairman of the finance committee, respectively, of the American Cotton association; J. R. Alexander, Scotts, Ark., president of the Arkansas division of the cotton association; Nathan Adams, Dallas, Texas, president of the Texas division; R. C. Hamer, Columbia, S. C., president of the South Carolina division; J. M. McGrath, Brookhaven, Miss., president of the Mississippi division; W. B. Thompson, New Orleans, president of the Louisiana division; Bradford Knapp, dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Arkansas, and Mr. Welty.

Addresses of welcome by Gov.-Elect McRae and Mr. Fitzpatrick will open the conference. Subjects to be discussed afterward include the work of the various state divisions of the cotton association represented at the meeting, the cotton export situation, the bankers' viewpoint of the cotton situation throughout the South, and the cotton market situation.

In addition to the talks on the work of state organizations, addresses on what has been done by county units of the association in Arkansas will be given by H. E. Trulock, of Pine Bluff, chairman of the Jefferson county unit, and A. G. Little, of Bryantville, chairman of a Mississippi county unit. A representative of the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture also will deliver an address.

WITH OUR VISITORS

Emerson Showed Rare Courage In Defending Emerson

"I have just learned something about Emerson that has given me an even greater opinion of his tremendous moral courage," announced John Cowper Powys, author and lecturer, who left Sunday night to deliver a lecture in Birmingham, Ala., after giving three lectures in Memphis. "What I learned is this: Directly after Whitman published his 'Leaves of Grass' and when the outcry against this wonderful collection of poems was at its height, the Sage of Concord wrote a letter to Whitman congratulating him upon publishing the most beautiful, original and distinctive volume of American poetry ever issued.

"In view of the outcry against the book at that time it took courage of the highest order to do such a deed as this; simply and kindly as it was. The outcry against Whitman was tremendous. He held an insignificant post in the treasury department at Washington and the politician at the head of it dismissed him for publishing a licentious book. Think of it! He published one of the world's greatest and most distinctive books; set a landmark in not only American but world literature, and his reward was dismissal from an obscure office paying about $700 a year.

"At that, though, if he lived today he would probably have been jailed. They are now prosecuting Dreiser and Cabell for far less plain speaking than Whitman was guilty of." The

No Real Liberty In America, This Visitor Asserts

"We boast much of our liberty because we do not know what liberty means," commented D. S. E. Vintner, real estate dealer, of New Orleans, who has just returned from a trip abroad, and is now at the Peabody hotel. "I am reminded of one of the bitterest pieces of satire that I have read. A man comes to a monarchy where the people possess perfect freedom. He preaches liberty and a republic. The people respond, 'We have liberty. What is a republic?' then he went to a republic—in name—and preached the same doctrine. 'We have a republic,' they replied. 'What is liberty?' That is our case today.

"In France they differentiate between liberty and license. Here if a man was to wear a straw hat in winter time he would be hooted off the street. In France it would be considered that the fellow had some reason for wearing a straw hat, or else that he preferred to wear a straw hat, and not one comment would be made. Here if a man even wears a flower in his button hole he is gibed unmercifully. You must not rise above the herd here and the herd is very, very mediocre and afraid of the slightest innovation.

"As it is in little things so it is in larger. We are surrounded by a cast-iron tyranny that is as meretricious as it is intangible. If a man were to walk down the main street of this or any other town barefoot he would be mobbed. In Paris it would just be considered that the gentleman had a reason for walking barefoot and not a second glance would be bestowed upon him. Some years ago a most estimable gentleman, learned in arts and letters, came to this land of liberty, wearing an ancient Greek costume. One of the most beautiful costumes, by the way, that was ever invented. He did not dare step on the street without having police to protect him. In Paris he walks the streets without a second glance leveled at him. So much for our boasted liberty."

COTTON WAREHOUSES UNDER INSPECTION

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 25.—In line with the movement in Arkansas to keep as much cotton as possible from the market, an inspector for the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture now is in the state visiting warehouses with a view to bonding them for cotton storage. The bonding of warehouses, made possible by a law passed by congress in July, 1919, is being urged by the Arkansas division of the American Cotton association as one of the greatest steps in the direction of stabilizing the cotton situation.

The inspector, E. W. Palmer, of Atlanta, was sent to Arkansas as a result of the efforts of D. C. Welty, vice-president and manager of the Arkansas division of the cotton association. He was furnished a list of warehouses owned or controlled by units of the cotton association and this week is inspecting them preliminary to their being bonded. The list of warehouses furnished Mr. Palmer include houses at Prairie View, Cotton Plant, Spartanburg, Paris, Cabot, Leachville, Hampton, Magistrate, Clarksville, Searcy, Lenoir and Scots.

Many other warehouses in the state could be bonded if application for this action were made by the owners. Mr. Welty said, and by so doing would make available to farmers the best collateral they could obtain in exchange for their cotton pending its sale.

TUG HAS BAD HABIT: DISABLED THREE TIMES

WILMINGTON, N. C., Oct. 25.—For the third time within a few months, the tug J. W. Scott has been brought into Wilmington in a disabled condition. The tug, in a sinking condition, was picked up at sea by the Mallory liner San Marcos several months ago and after arriving here a libel for $22,000 was paid by the owner. Putting to sea again the tug's engines broke down and she was towed back to port, a local concern libelling her for $12,000 for repairs. This action also was settled and the Scott put to sea again Friday. Her machinery became disabled off Cape Fear river and a gasoline launch she was towing brought her into port.

The Scott is owned by a Cuban sugar planter and is en route south.

Blood in Bad Fix

South Carolina Lady Knew Something Was the Matter With Her Blood, and Took Ziron.

Believing that something was the matter with her blood, Mrs. R. L. Paxton, of Pelzer, S. C., recently took several bottles of Ziron Iron Tonic. She tells the story of her experience below:

"I was weak and run-down. I was nervous and felt all worn out.

"I had no ambition to do anything—everything I forced myself to do made me feel like I wanted to rest a long time afterwards.

"I felt so bad.

"I was sallow; my skin was bad.

"Sores came in my head, and I knew my blood was in a bad fix.

"I knew iron was good for bad blood, and a number around me were using Ziron with good results, so I thought I'd try it and see what it would do for me.

"I found shortly after I began it that I was less nervous.

"I found that the sores were drying up.

"My skin took on a more healthy color.

"I felt so much stronger—so much so, that I'm sure glad to recommend Ziron."

A Series of New Price Level Sales

WE INAUGURATE TOMORROW, and shall continue each day this week, a series of sales of merchandise on which the prices have been revised downward, allowing us to offer standard goods of quality to the public at prices which reflect the downward trend much more than any other commodities. The radical reductions on wearables have placed them on a tempting basis where demand will be stimulated immediately.

Contrast these new prices with the small savings effected so far on foodstuffs,—with the stationary level of rents, light, labor, etc. A new level of merchandise value is already here.

Lowenstein's was the first store in Memphis to give the public the advantage of wholesale reductions—it will continue to lead in this service—
